How to request your personal information

You have the right to get a copy of the information that is held about you. This is known as a subject access request. This right of subject access means that you can make a request under the Data Protection Act to any organisation processing your personal data.

However, it is important to remember that not all personal information is covered and there are 'exemptions' within the Act which may allow an organisation to refuse to comply with your subject access request in certain circumstances.

The Data Protection Act does not stop you making a request on someone else's behalf. This is often necessary for a solicitor acting on behalf of a client, or it could simply be that an individual wants someone else to act for them.

In these cases, the organisation will need to satisfy itself that the third party making the request has the individual's permission to act on their behalf. It is the third party's responsibility to provide this evidence, which could be a written authority to make the request, or a power of attorney.

If a person does not have the mental capacity to manage their own affairs and you are their attorney, for example you have a Lasting Power of Attorney with authority to manage their property and affairs, you will have the right to access information about the person you represent to help you carry out your role.

When requesting your personal information from us, you should include the following information:

- your full name, address and contact telephone number;
- details of the specific information you require and any relevant dates.

A 30-day deadline applies when dealing with requests to provide personal information subject to us receiving the fee and sufficient details of your request.

Your rights under applicable data protection law:

Your rights are as follows (noting that these rights don't apply in all circumstances and that data portability is only relevant from May 2018):

- The right to be informed about our processing of your personal data;
- The right to have your personal data corrected if it's inaccurate and to have incomplete personal data completed;

- The right to object to processing of your personal data;
- The right to restrict processing of your personal data;
- The right to have your personal data erased (the “right to be forgotten”);
- The right to request access to your personal data and information about how we process it;
- The right to move, copy or transfer your personal data (“data portability”); and
- Rights in relation to automated decision making including profiling.

You have the right to complain to the Information Commissioner’s Office. It has enforcement powers and can investigate compliance with data protection law.

Data anonymisation and aggregation

Your personal data may be converted into statistical or aggregated data which can’t be used to identify you, then used to produce statistical research and reports. This aggregated data may be shared and used in all the ways described above.
